THE GENERAL ELECTION.

The polling yesterday resulted in the return of Messrs. Young and Roberts for the Hastings and Manning; Mr. J. Curves for the Clarence; and Mr. Ferguson, for Wellington.

The nomination for Wentworth took place yesterday, when Messrs. Quinn and McGregor were returned unopposed.

Five candidates were nominated for Queanbeyan yesterday, namely, Messrs. W. G. O'Neill, P. C. Hodkinson, J. J. Wright, W. A. Affleck, and E. W. O'Sullivan. Mr. Affleck obtained the show of hands.

In addition to three other gentlemen, the Hon. G. R. Dibbs was nominated yesterday for the Richmond. The announcement of his name was received with marked disapprobation.

Mr. John M'Elhone has reconsidered his determination to retire from political life. He was nominated yesterday for that his old constituency, the Upper Hunter. His proposal stated that Mr. M'Elhone was too ill to be present at the nomination. Messrs. Hungerford and Fitzgerald were also nominated. The show of hands was in favour of the last-named gentlemen and Mr. M'Elhone.

The Premier has expressed his intention of becoming a candidate for Monaro if promised of sufficient support are given him.

Mr. Wright has been asked to allow himself to be nominated for New England. It is probable that Mr. Wright will decline.

The elections are proving fatal to the protectionists and to the opponents of the Land Act. With the exception of Mr. Forsyth, no new candidate who avowed himself a Protectionist, and who raised that issue in the elections, has made a respectable show at the polls.

At the election for Gunnadah 300 more votes were polled than were recorded on any previous occasion. Mr. Abbott scored a great victory, and the significant thing connected with it is that it was achieved for him by the free electors. Speaking at Lockinvar, on the occasion of his nomination, Mr. J. F. Bowes said "we may glad the people rightly understand the issues which have been before them and the men who stand by them that in the new Parliament no Government would be able to continue the wild extravagance of the Stuart-Dibbs Ministry."

Mr. Burns has now been elected no less than 10 times for the Hunter, and he has represented the constituency for nearly 20 years.

Mr. William Bailey, J.P., the returning officer for the Newcastle electorate, has written a letter, which appears elsewhere, in which he replies to statements made by a correspondent in yesterday's Herald to the effect that the results of the elections were erroneous. At the declaration of the poll, Mr. Wright and Mr. Dibbs were declared Mr. Wright was in favour of the Land Act, and Mr. Dibbs was against it.

Mr. Frank Cowley has announced himself as a candidate for the Murumbidgee. His platform is, revision of the tariff, amendment of the Land Act, placing the railways under a local government, with a non-political head, water conservation, and land reclamation.

Three additional candidates are in the field for Monaro.

Mr. Fitzgerald, who will be probably elected to one of the seats for the Upper Hunter, is a strong supporter of the Land Act, which he declared to be the best that has been introduced.

Mr. Proctor is not making headway at New England. His assaults upon the Land Act, which by the way he would not have replaced by Sir John Robertson's land law, have been coldly received, and it is intended to nominate a candidate in his constituency, Mr. and Mrs. Inglis, who is also an opponent of the Land Act.

Mr. Ross at Molong.

Mr. Knapp, the hon. secretary of the Local Option League, writes to say that "up to yesterday night 10 new Leagues had been formed in Central Australia." From a carefully revised analysis of the result of the voting, I find 27 candidates have been returned who have pronounced in favour of full local option. There are 19 again the principle. The remaining 13 members are, some of them, still in doubt, and a few more are likely to be returned before the final returns have come in, but the result is not likely to be altered.

The returns for the Clarence electorate so far give the following totals:—

Purves	666
Stevenson	168
Cameron	168

A show of hands was taken, and declared to be in favour of Messrs. Fitzgerald and McElhone. Mr. Hungerford demanded a poll.

The usual vote of thanks to the Returning-officer and cheers to the Queen closed the proceedings.

THE CLARENCE (1 MEMBER).

GRAFTON, TUESDAY.

The official declaration of the poll for the Clarence electorate was made at the Commercial Hotel, 180 Pitt-street, Sydney, 10 a.m. The total number of voters was 1,000. At the election in 1880 Mr. Slattery polled 456, and his opponent 256.

THE RICHMOND ELECTORATE (2 MEMBERS).

QLUANBEYAN, TUESDAY.

The nomination of candidates for the Queanbeyan electorate took place to-day, when Messrs. P. Hogan, F. G. Crough, T. Ewing, and G. H. Dibbs were nominated. The last-named was declared to be in favour of Messrs. Hogan and Crough, and was supported by Mr. O'Neill and Mr. Affleck, who were nominated. The show of hands was declared to be in favour of Mr. Affleck. A poll was demanded by the other candidates.

THE RICHMOND ELECTORATE (2 MEMBERS).

LISMORE, TUESDAY.

The nomination of candidates for the Richmond electorate took place to-day, when Messrs. P. Hogan, F. G. Crough, T. Ewing, and G. H. Dibbs were nominated. The last-named was declared to be in favour of Messrs. Hogan and Crough, and was supported by Mr. O'Neill and Mr. Affleck, who were nominated. The show of hands was declared to be in favour of Mr. Affleck. A poll was demanded by the other candidates.

THE HASTINGS AND MANNING (2 MEMBERS).

WINGHAM, TUESDAY.

The polling for the Hastings and Manning electorates to-day has resulted, so far, as follows:—

Young	966
Roberts	387
McKinlay	396

A few unimportant returns have yet to come in, but the result is not likely to be altered.

THE HAWKESBURY (1 MEMBER).

WINDSOR, TUESDAY.

The following are the total returns of the polling for the Hawkesbury electorate:—

Bowman	119
McQuade	739

Majority for Bowman, 739.

INVERELL (1 MEMBER).

INVERELL, TUESDAY.

The official declaration of the poll took place to-day. The numbers were:—

S. W. Moore	666
R. L. Murray	482

The informal votes numbered 37.

The total number of votes polled (1187) is the largest number returned.

Mr. Jago Smith has declared his intention of opposing Dr. Ross at Molong.

MACLEAY (1 MEMBER).

KEMPSTON, TUESDAY.

The state of the poll so far as it has been roughly ascertained is as follows:—

R. B. Smith	1109
O. O. Dangerfield	501

Majority for Smith, 1109.

SHOALHAVEN (1 MEMBER).

NOWRA, TUESDAY.

The state of the poll was officially declared at noon to-day, and was the largest number of electors present.

Mr. Humphries was chosen from the Commercial Hotel, having a large crowd following, headed by the Noosa brass band. The Returning-officer gave the state of the poll amid tremendous cheering.

Mr. Humphries addressed the electors, taking his return as an endorsement of the policy of the Free Trade party. Mr. Martin also spoke, condemning all sections of the local press for not reporting him, and for misrepresenting him. Mr. Martin has given no local notice of meetings, and both his son followed Mr. Humphries at all his meetings, and spoke after him. The election passed off with disturbances, and much go-drummed rallying took place respecting dump-cars, barbed wire, and standard paint.

WELLINGTON (1 MEMBER).

WELLINGTON, TUESDAY.

The rough state of the poll was declared to-day to be as follows at Wellington:—

Ferguson	301
Critchell	93
Bennett	19

Majority for Ferguson, 301.

NOMINATIONS.

THE HUNTER (1 MEMBER).

WEST MAITLAND, TUESDAY.

At Lochinvar, yesterday, the nomination for the Hunter took place. Mr. Robert Scott proposed, and Mr. James Birrell seconded. Mr. Birrell, the younger, was the only candidate proposed. Mr. Birrell was declared elected.

In addressing the electors, Mr. Birrell said that he had to express his grateful acknowledgments for the kindnes which they had shown him on that and on previous occasions. He knew from long experience that, however much he might be misrepresented, he would always be well received in the Murwillumbah-Lismore railway. He would be in favour of the Land Act, which he believed to be the best that had been introduced.

Mr. Fitzgerald maintained that this was not the first time he appeared before them as a candidate for Parliamentary honours. He solicited their support on the grounds of his being a local man, having resided amongst them since 1870, and that he had no interest of his own in the district, but had been born and brought up there. He had held several meetings, and should still feel bound to meet the electors at various other portions of the electorate. He hoped his friends at Pokolbin and Mount Vincent would bear with him for a while till he could meet them. He explained the position he took up with regard to the dredging. It was a question of public interest, and he would support any measure which would be in the interest of the community. He had been soundly beaten, which he thought was due to the fact that he had not been able to get a majority of the votes. THE FEDERAL COUNCIL BILL.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

Mr. Service has not yet recovered his voice, so Mr. Ferdinand moved, in the Legislative Assembly this afternoon, the second reading of the Federal Council Bill. He said that the amendments in the original bill made by the Imperial Parliament could be accepted. The amendment on clause 5, enabling her Majesty the Queen to increase the representatives, was intended to obviate the necessity of passing another Act through the Imperial Parliament. The Queen would only take action, and request the colonies, so that practically the legal effect would be that in order to increase the representation in the Council, it would require the whole of the colonies which have brought the Act into operation to request, through their Legislatures, her Majesty to increase the representation. It was a pity that the whole of the colonies had not joined the Federal Union in the first instance. He hoped that New South Wales might possibly come in; but, as far as he knew, New Zealand would not come in just at present. There should be a moderately numerous body to discuss the various measures which will come before the Council.

The next amendment is in clause 15, and consists in the insertion of subsection H., which reads as follows:—“Any member who, at the request of the Legislators of the colonies, her Majesty by order-in-council shall think fit to refer to the council under this clause, it will require the whole of the colonies and not one or two of them, by their legislatures, to pray for an amendment in council by her Majesty, before any matter beyond those mentioned in the clause can be brought before the Council, and will require the whole of the colonies which combine to make the Federal Council to seek by petition that the Council may legislate on the subject upon which they are all agreed.” This has precisely the same object in view as that in regard to the increase of representation: that is, to obviate the necessity of passing an Amending Act and to give her Majesty the power to do what an Act would do if everyone was agreed. It shows the wonderful consideration which they have given this bill to prevent the Council interfering with protection in Victoria, or free trade in N. S. Wales, and also such a prohibition should be included. The bill was also deficient, because it was calculated to destroy the independence of the different colonies, in consequence of the manner in which the Government had been driving the Queensland trade away from the border.

The House went into committee on the Federal Island Labourers Bill. All the clauses were passed, with an amendment in the last clause providing for the abolition of the granting of licences after 1890. Mr. Black asked the Premier what provision would be made for carrying on of the industry. The Premier stated that he was not prepared to give a definite reply, but he trusted that in five years the industry would be self-supporting. He said that a scheme might be arrived at when the £50,000 vote came before the Federal Council.

Mr. Duffy and Mr. Wixson replied, and said that protection was not in danger, because no matter could be referred to the Council unless all the legislatures were agreed. Any power now possessed by an individual colony would be as nothing compared with the power of united Australia. As for preserving bills, that had to be done now in some cases. During the debate Mr. Service read a telegram announcing the second reading of the bill in the Queensland Assembly. (Cheers.)

At half-past 10 the debate was adjourned on the motion of Colonel Smith.

AUSTRALASIAN PARLIAMENTS.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

In the Legislative Council, Colonel Sargent moved the second reading of the Licensing Bill. Several members spoke on the question. The second reading will probably be passed unanimously, but it was intimated that amendments would be proposed in committee. The debate will be resumed to-morrow.

In the Legislative Assembly to-day, Mr. Service, in replying to Mr. Burrows, said that the Government did not propose during this session to ask the House to consider the question of the renewal of the New South Wales Border Treaty, and the abolition of the Stock Tax, but if a member gave notice of motion on the subject he would gladly ask the House to sit an extra day to consider it. Mr. Wixson gave notice of a new clause in the Federal Council Bill, “mentioning that questions shall be referred to the Federal Council by Act of Parliament.”

Mr. Patterson supported the bill, and asked that it be provided unconditionally that the representatives should be the Ministers for the time being. In other respects the bill was a very desirable one. It really meant the transferring of the Imperial powers to Australasian statesmen, those powers to be exercised in Australia. (Cheers.) The attitude of New South Wales is thought to be incomprehensible. The people of that colony no doubt felt that the departure of the Soudan Contingent eclipsed everything that Mr. Service had ever done, and that there was no necessity for them to enter into a union; but as that dazzling event was now numbered among the glories of the past, they might now see their way to join. At any rate, the personnel of the Council should be such that would command prestige and power, and then New South Wales would not be strong enough to stand aloof. The men should be the best that each colony could send, and therefore he desired always to have the principal Minister appointed.

Mr. Pearson said that the New South Wales Government would not join because they feared protection. There was nothing in the bill now to prevent the Council interfering with protection in Victoria, or free trade in N. S. Wales, and also such a prohibition should be included. The bill was also deficient, because it was calculated to destroy the independence of the different colonies, in consequence of the manner in which the Government had been driving the Queensland trade away from the border.

BRISBANE, TUESDAY.

The Premier in moving the Legislative Assembly to-day the second reading of the Federal Council Adopting Bill, after recapitulating the benefits of the proposed federation, said that the Queensland Bill would provide for the appointment of representatives for a term of years, and it was desirable that they should be in accord with the Government of the colony. The Premier then referred to the action of New South Wales in holding aloof from the other colonies in the matter of federation, and said that when he was in Sydney in January last he met Mr. Dailey, and he was led to believe that there would be some common action. Sir A. Sturt, however, came back on the scene, and raised numerous objections, and did a considerable amount of harm to the cause. He was sorry that the action of New South Wales throughout was of a most unfriendly character, and stated he would not care to lay on the table of the House all the correspondence between the two colonies. The mother colony of Australia had assisted to thwart federation in every way. He hoped the other colonies would work together, and if New South Wales wished to be alone he would let her be alone, and New South Wales would find it inconvenient to be isolated. Queensland intended to show New South Wales no animosity, but at the same time he did not feel inclined to have anything to do with them in the matter.

Sir Thomas McIlwraith, leader of the Opposition, supported the measure, and highly eulogised the Premier for his successful efforts in the matter of the Federal Council. He said that the reporters had been allowed to publish the proceedings of the Convention in Sydney, so that the doing of their public men would have been placed before the public, the course of action reported to by New South Wales would probably never have taken place. He could not help blaming New South Wales for their conduct. The men who took the most prominent part in the Convention in 1883, and acquiesced in everything done by the Convention were the very men who had surreptitiously tried to resist against being held to their promise to join federation, and when they found they could not with propriety do so, they had taken steps by understand means to block any work being done in the cause of federation. The correspondence laid on the table of this House satisfied him that New South Wales had not taken up a dignified position, or rather the Government of New South Wales, for he did not blame the colony. He was sure the New South Wales members of the Convention were not in union with the people of New South Wales. Messrs. Griffith and Morrissey had acted with great tact and discretion, and an amount of temper which deserved credit, against the majority of New South Wales to frustrate the matter. Mr. Dibbs, who moved the resolution at the Convention binding those present to pledge themselves to work together, and the member who had held over the question from Parliament for a year, and then moved the passing of the bill, in a somewhat lukewarm manner than did, was brought about in a cowardly way. Mr. Dailey's action, he said, was worse. When pressed by the Agent-General in London to give an account on an amendment proposed in the draft bill, Mr. Dailey said that, from the circumstances in which the colony was placed (probably referring to Sir A. Sturt's illness), they would have nothing to do with the matter. tectionists into Parliament, and that in the course of a year or two our tariff would be assimilated to that of Victoria. The elections for the metropolitan division have been held, and while a few protectionists have been returned, almost every candidate who made protection a test question was placed at the bottom of the poll. Of the twenty-nine members who have been returned for country constituencies, only four or five are in favour of protection, and these latter were old members, who did not seek re-election because of their fiscal doctrines. In the country, as in the town, candidates who have contested the election on the protectionist platform have been badly beaten. The fact, which was doubtful to many people at the beginning of the elections, is now quite clear, that the demand for protection is confined to a few, and that the general body of the farming population have no desire that it should be introduced.

Both in the city and the country the majority of the candidates have expressed themselves in regard to the payment of members. At no previous election has so much been said on the subject; but it is remarkable how little the subject seems to be understood. Probably what has brought it to the front is the recent action of Queensland and of South Australia in affirming that members of Parliament ought to be paid for their services. Payment of members may come in this colony, but it ought to come only as the result of solid argument and of proved necessity. This, however, we are not likely to have, if the reasons for the establishment of the principle should be no better than those which have been given by the various candidates who have referred to the matter. We are told that payment of members is the keystone of the democratic arch, and that it is a corollary of democracy; but we are not shown that it is either one or the other. If it could be proved that there is a lack of candidates for Parliament, or that the giving of a stipend of £300 a year to every member of the Legislature would secure a better class of candidates than we got under the present voluntary system, then it might be the duty of the country to sanction the principle of payment of members without delay. But can these things be proved? If they cannot, why should the voluntary system be abolished? The new Parliament, until it gets more light on the subject, should have nothing to do with the payment of members.

The interest in the Argentine Republic as a pastoral country increases constantly, and any facts as to present conditions are eagerly read by all those who have interest in pastoral matters or in Australian commercial prosperity. The latest budget of reliable news is supplied by a very lengthy article in the current number of the Australasian, wherein one of a party of three Australian gentlemen who had recently visited Uruguay and the Republic relates his experiences and the opinions to which they had led. He speaks first of the capital, Buenos Ayres, a large city, as is well known, but with disadvantages as a shipping port which have not perhaps been generally fully realised. The anchorage is so bad that all ships have to lie twelve miles from the town, and as a consequence the cost of lighterage neutralises all advantages which might accrue to closer proximity to Europe and the larger open markets of the world. The port, however, may be improved, for certainly the resources which are described should, under good government, be sufficient to provide funds for gigantic tasks. Journeying inland, the travellers found the great treeless plains, the peculiar feature of the Rio Plata country, rich beyond all expectation, the railways traversing them of greater length than in any Australian colony, and beyond the railways coaching systems such as were never approached in our supremest coaching days. The water supply is also exceedingly good, from 30 to 40 inches per annum for 300 miles inland, and beyond that always a splendid artesian supply obtainable by sinking from 8 to 18 feet. This doubtless may be attributed to the marvellous backbone of the Andes mountains, whose water-conserving powers are without parallel in the world.

The traveller does not go into detail quite so much as might be desired, but still supplies some few facts whose significance cannot be ignored. "On a stretch of country 400 miles north and south, and 350 miles east and west, millions of acres were passed through, on which the soil was quite as good as that on the Hawkesbury flats." And several stations were inspected and are briefly described. One, a property 70 miles south from Buenos Ayres, is described as fenced, subdivided, and containing 28,000 acres, and running at the time of the visit 35,000 sheep, 9,000 cattle, and 1,500 horses; yet with such a crop of grass that a fire would have swept all before it. Another property, 300 miles south of the capital, "was owned by an Argentine, and was for sale. The area was 173,000 acres, and there were depasturing upon it 24,000 cattle, 30,000 sheep, and 2,500 horses. From the condition of the pastures it was considered the property was not half stocked. The next place visited was 670,000 acres, and had on it 40,000 horses, 30,000 cattle, and 60,000 sheep. This property had only lately been reclaimed from the Indians, and was certainly not half stocked. The visitors estimated that this estate would carry fully one and a half million of sheep. Both these properties were offered for sale at 17/- per acre, and probably could have been purchased for less. Both properties were within a reasonable distance of a railway."

It must be observed, though, that all these were well within the coastal areas, nor do we find figures quoted about any property that in Australian phrase would be described as fairly of the back blocks. We may, however, judge something of their resources from the fact that the Republic possesses now upwards of 90,000,000 sheep, with cattle and horses in larger proportions than in Australia. Nor must it be forgotten that these millions have been produced under the worst possible management. The stations are mostly held by native Argentines, foreign settlement having been kept back by fear of the unsettled conditions of the country, which indeed is not yet what peaceable Australian settlers would desire; the traveller relating, as proof of this, the well-known incident of Colonel Tonino's rebellion, which in the early months of this present year overthrew the government of a province, looted its treasury, and held temporary possession of all its lands. There is much disease also, foot-and-mouth and scab being prevalent in all the flocks, and such aid their own cause and serve society by curses as Bathurst trefoil, and many other burs common in all the pastures.

It is not a country which can be spoken of as our formidable rival just now; but what is it likely to become in one or two decades, and how will its influence be felt here? Its area is upwards of 1,200,000 square miles, it lies fairly in the temperate zone, between the twenty-second and the fortieth parallels, its soil is described as amazingly fertile, its climate as more than ordinarily good, its lands are not yet largely alienated, and the Government are prepared to make large concessions to men who will aid the work of development? Is there not a possibility shown here of effective temptation to many who have already and who might be disposed shortly to invest in pastoral properties in Australia? Are the bad port, the unsettled Government, the poor stock, the difficulty of obtaining labour, sufficient to convince all men of British breeding that Australia is still the best field for pastoral investment? Compared with them, do our drouths and distances, occasional lack of water, rents, and prices appear small? Not nearly so small as might be desired, and our superior advantages have to be made, no less than proved. We have real tangible present advantages here, such as the Argentine Republic can never know, and others which she cannot realise within the century. Our matchless isolation first, and next our freedom from any large native difficulties. We could follow every dictate of humanity if we chose, and still develop our pastoral industries tenfold, and we have also apart from an almost equal chance in the European markets, a better way of access to China and the East. The latter we have just begun to recognise, and, taught by experience of recent, as by prospect of pending, disaster, may shortly push with zeal. But we need, if we really intend to maintain our supremacy as a wool-producing State, to take larger views and entertain greater projects than these. Nature has asked more from us than from the Argentine Confederation, and with a proper self-respect we cannot deny that she has fitted our hands for the performance of the task. And if we are wise, with eyes open to all possibilities of foreign competition, as to all opportunities of home development, we must get to that task as men who are determined to succeed. We must face the great problem of water conservation and irrigation in comprehensive and practical style. We must see that we have been, so far, niggard in giving, as thrifless in taking from our lands. Our future great loans must be for works of direct improvement of the lands, as well as for the construction of railways. We have no need whatsoever for despair in presence of any competitor, but we have every incentive and a clear and positive duty to work as we have never worked before.

The growth of the Anglo-Australian shipping trade, as disclosed by figures in another column, presents one of the most remarkable evidences of the material development of the Australian colonies. In the twelve years from 1872 to 1884 the clearances of sailing vessels from London to Australia increased from 215 to 223. The vessels employed in the trade in the earlier year were scarcely so large as those engaged in the later, as the tonnage in the one case was but 217,967 and in the other 241,396, the one figure giving an average of 1014 tons for each vessel and the other 1882 tons. If these figures represented the whole of the Anglo-Australian trade during the period named, it could not be said that there had been any substantial improvement; there would rather have been a relative decrease, the growth of the Australian population being considered. But the figures are exclusive of the steam shipping trade; and it is this which has made such immense strides. From the table published we gather that in 1872 no steam vessels other than those of the P. and O. Company cleared from London for Australia. What the tonnage of the steamships of that fleet was then does not appear. Probably it was not more than 20,000 tons. The first steamships of other lines began to leave London for Australia in 1877, when 17 sailed, having a tonnage of 32,686. Each succeeding year the steamships increased in number, until in 1884 no fewer than 110, of 225,333 tons, exclusive of the P. and O. Company's vessels, sailed from London for Australia. Not only have the steamships engaged in the trade increased in number, they have increased in size, the average tonnage in 1877 being 1822, and last year 20,600 tons. What the increase in the number and size of the P. and O. Company's steamers has been is not stated, but every one knows how much superior the ships of the present day are compared with those of 1872. On the figures stated, the steam tonnage has increased from 20,000 in 1872 to 290,333 in 1884, or fourteen and a half fold; whilst the sailing tonnage has increased by only 12 per cent. The bulk of the Anglo-Australian trade during the period named, it is to be hoped, is now done by steamships of ever-increasing size and speed, an evidence of the growing importance of the trade. Looked at from an international point of view, the tonnage of sailing vessels to Melbourne in 1872 was 100,321 tons, amounting to 70,250 tons to Sydney. In 1884 the figures were nearly reversed, for while to Melbourne the tonnage was 74,457 tons, to Sydney and Newcastle the total was 109,762 tons. And as it is known that the bulk of the cargoes of steamers is delivered in Sydney, it will be seen how the southern colony has lost and the northern colony gained in the measure of trade during the past twelve years.

The men engaged in all branches of the furniture-making trades—cabinet-makers and upholsterers, polishers, mattress and palliassine makers, chair-makers, and wood-turners—held a meeting for the purpose of forming a general society. Like other working men, they have a fixed idea of the truth of the axiom, "Unity is strength"; and, troubled in many ways by competition with inferior races, by apprehension of invasion from America, where they discover that "in spite of the existence of societies there are from 700,000 to 800,000 operatives out of work"—they have resolved in some fashion to unite and protect themselves. Doubtless they have much to gain by unity; they suffer much at the hands of speculators; there is a ridiculous discrepancy between the actual cost of any ordinary article of furniture and the price at which it is sold in the shop; but it is difficult to see how the union of the workmen will mend or end this. They must, if they desire to enjoy the full fruits of their own labour, and to rid the public of the middleman's impost, take a stand in union to co-operation—perform a little more work, exercise a little more thrift, and themselves sell direct to their proper customers. A project of this sort, however, may grow naturally out of the amalgamation of the trades; but what of those natural enemies, the Chinese? It is hoped that the Chinese may by and bye be drawn right out of the trade, and, it must be assumed, out of the town and the colony also. But what will the town and the colony have to say to such a proposal as that? Are they prepared to do without the Chinese assistance in the production of cheap furniture, and will they trust to the generosity and sense of justice of the white workmen free of Chinese competition? If by superior skill and aid of better machinery the white workman can produce better and cheaper articles than the Chinese, the result will be satisfactory; but can they not at once again and again direct attention to the disgraceful and dangerous condition in which the Chinese live! It is not right to ask any workmen to enter into competition with men of whom we know nothing but that they live and herd as pigs, who transform our dwelling-houses into human hives, who disobey all the proper laws of our civilization. Laws of decent life would be a strictly legitimate tax upon the Chinese, and with a clemency with which is closely allied a sense of shame and danger we must ask, Why were they not long since imposed?

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Ballarat, with the Albany Suez mails and files to September 18, arrived at Albany at 2 a.m. yesterday, from Colombo. The Sydney portion of her main shield reached here on Tuesday or Wednesday next.

The Right Rev. Dr. Webber, the new Bishop of Brisbane, arrived at Auckland on Sunday last, by the California mail steamer. Dr. Webber will be the guest of the Bishop of Auckland for a few days, and he will arrive in Sydney about the 1st proximo.

H.M.S. Nelson left Sydney yesterday afternoon for Hobart. She cleared the Heads at a quarter to 2 o'clock.

Contrary to his first intention, the Hon. G. Dibbs decided yesterday to visit Wagga before the day of nomination for the Murrumbidgee, and accordingly left Sydney by the ordinary mail-train last night.

The Hon. W. J. Trickett is for the present attending to the duties in the Department of Public Works requiring the consideration of a Minister.

At the usual weekly meeting of the Executive Council yesterday, the proposal to make a mail service between Sydney and San Francisco, via Auckland and Honolulu, was the ordinary manner confirmed. This confirmation or approval by the Executive Council does not interfere with the consideration of the question by Parliament, as the same arrived at the Government of New South Wales and New Zealand, is still subject to parliamentary approval. The confirmation of the proposal by the Executive is merely the ordinary approval to the minute of the Postmaster-General, and it has been delayed in consequence of the recent Ministerial changes, and the absence of Mr. See, for some time.

The second reading of the Federal Council Adopting Bill was moved in two of the Australian Parliaments last night—the one by Mr. Kerferd, Attorney-General, in the Victorian Assembly, and the other by Mr. Griffith, Premier of Queensland, in the Legislative Assembly of that colony. In the latter case, the action of the Government of New South Wales in holding strongly against the proposed bill on one hand, or old naval-church copyists of the post on one hand, or to parliamentary approval. The confirmation of the proposal by the Executive is merely the ordinary approval to the minute of the Postmaster-General, and it has been delayed in consequence of the recent Ministerial changes, and the absence of Mr. See, for some time.

Mr. O'Meara of the Senate of the University of Sydney was held on Monday last at the room of the Royal Society, Elizabeth-street. There were present Mr. C. Rollinson (presiding), the Hon. W. Macleay, Dr. H. N. MacLaurin, Mr. H. C. Russell, and Professors Gurney, Stephens, Scott, Stuart, and Liveridge. The minutes of the last meeting having been read the chairman formally reported the death of Professor Smith. He then strongly commended upon Mr. Kerferd the adoption of the following resolution, which were seconded by Professor Gurney and carried unanimously:—"The Senate expresses its deep sense of the loss which the University has sustained by the death of Professor Smith, Professor of Experimental Physics, and late Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, and its appreciation of his long and meritorious services. The Senate further desires to convey to his widow the expression of its sympathy with her in the loss which she has sustained." A letter was received from Dr. Alexander Herzen, Professor of Physiology in the Lausanne Academy, Switzerland, which had been addressed to the Government and sent to the Senate. In it Dr. Herzen expressed his wish to obtain a professorship in Sydney, preferably a chair of physiology and hygiene. The Registrar was instructed to inform the Minister of Instruction that there is at present no such vacancy in the University that such a position could be created. That such a position could be created was acknowledged by Dr. Herzen, an offer from the Chevalier Jervis, of Turin (also conveyed through the Government), to superintend the purchase of scientific apparatus for the University, was not accepted, as it was deemed that the present method of purchasing such apparatus was unsatisfactory. Some applications for exemption from lectures were dealt with, and certain proposed alterations in the by-laws of the Faculty of Science were brought forward and discussed, the final consideration of them being left over until the next meeting.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Australian Mutual Provident Society, held yesterday, by the express train accompanied by his wife and daughter, to join the R.M.S. Clyde, at Melbourne, en route for Broken Hill, a pleasant trip. The General will remain for three months, which will cover a tour through India, where he will have the benefit of the cooler months of the year. His chief business is to recruit his weakened health, which has suffered considerably by the strain put upon him in carrying out the reorganisation of the service, following closely on the wear and tear of the Sudan campaign. The command of the forces has devolved temporarily on Colonial Roberts, who is now in charge.

CONTINENTAL GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT "STELLA.")

PARIS, AUGUST 28.

The violence of the anti-English campaign now being carried on among the Communistic portion of the press and people of this city, seems to be constantly on the increase. Roschfort, editor of the Intransigeant, being determined to persuade his party that the British general in Egypt compassed the murder of Olivier Pain, and the average Frenchman being only too willing a listener to any utterance that ministers to the hatred of England, which slumbered during the Empire, only to awaken with new bitterness under the present form of Government.

The crowded and disorderly meetings got up by the arch-agitator to denounce Great Britain's Government, people, and institutions as the special hindrance to the happiness of the world in general, and of France in particular, has succeeded in rousing so active a sentiment of hatred that an attack on the British Embassy has only been prevented by the energetic action of the local authorities, and the doubling of the police force charged with the protection of the habitat and the personnel of the representative of Queen Victoria in this city. The truth of Shakespeare's saying that "kissing goes by favour" is receiving a double demonstration in the manifestations of hatred which are rendering this city anything that is agreeable to English people at this time, and in the astonishing outbreak of welcome given to the deputation of Frenchmen, with M. de Lesseps at their head, who have been invited by the authorities of Buda-Pesth to visit Hungary, in order to receive the thanks of the people of that nationality for the descriptions sent to them by France after the last inundations. This delegation has been superbly entertained, carried to all the most interesting points of their arrival being celebrated with ovations, triumphal arches, speeches, bouquets, banquets, and illuminations; the whole countryside turning out to welcome them as guests sent down from heaven, and proclaiming, at every stopping-place, the eternal union of the heart of Hungary with France, and the unchangeable affection of her people for the whole French nation. Here all this exuberant manifestation of gratitude for a comparatively small amount of pecuniary aid and right, by the same population which after the miseries of the siege of Paris, received the magnificent gifts poured into the country by English hands, without a thought of gratitude and without attention, though the amount of the collections so lavishly raised all over the three kingdoms, for the prompt relief of the starving capital, exceeded a score of times all that France accomplished for the inundated districts of Hungary.

One of the most surprising displays of ecclesiastical splendour has just occurred in France. In just concluded at the grand old town of Boulogne, where in virtue of a Papal bull, obtained after long begging, a statue of the Virgin, believed by all the people of the region to be richly gifted with celestial powers and grace, has just been solemnly crowned with a superb diadem, replete of gifts and subscriptions contributed for the purpose.

"Officials will be appointed at other points of the coast when required or practical."

"Traders and others are confounded against visiting the portion of the coast and islands in the Pacific Ocean held, obtained after long begging, a statue of the Virgin, believed by all the people of the region to be richly gifted with celestial powers and grace, has just been solemnly crowned with a superb diadem, replete of gifts and subscriptions contributed for the purpose.

"Persons desirous of visiting, exploring, trading, or carrying timber within the limits of the protectorate are informed that they must apply by letter to her Majesty's Special Commissioner for the purpose. They must specify in what port or place their vessel is to be loaded, giving the name and address of their partners (if any) who may be connected with the ship."

"Letters for her Majesty's Special Commissioner should be addressed to the postmaster at Cooktown, by whom they will be forwarded to her Excellency."

"There is no regular mail service to New Guinea, but letters are forwarded by all vessels proceeding to Port Moresby, Cooktown, and New Guinea will be registered at Port Moresby."

"Port Moresby is the sole port of entry for goods, &c., within the limits of the protectorate. Captains of all ships, on the arrival at Port Moresby, are required to produce a permit issued by the Special Commissioner, or his agent, or no spirituous liquors are to be landed with him, nor firearms, gunpowder, dynamite, or any explosives are to be landed under any circumstances. No settlement or acquisition of land is to be made by any person, except by permission of any vessel arriving at Port Moresby is required to declare and report it, he has no written permission from the Deputy Commissioner at Port Moresby."

Catholics have promised their support and sympathy, and aid is invoked from all quarters.

In these days of "Centenaries" for the commemorating of everybody and everything, that of the 25th instant might have worthily received some notice. On that day one hundred years ago, Louis XVI., Marie Antoinette, Madame Elisabeth, and all the Royal princesses, wore in their button-holes or on their dresses, the potato blossoms which Paturet offered them; the first flowering in Europe of the new tuber patronized by the king, and so strangely opposed by the populace, the people fancying that this plant was intended to poison them, and devastating the plantations of potatoes wherever they could lay their hands upon them. Now, France boasts on its potato crop as completely as Ireland.

The painters, sculptors, and engineers of Dresden and Dusseldorf have decided, by a great majority, to discard the inelegant male costume of this day, and to return to the picturesque garments worn by the German artists in the 17th century, and which is much the same as that worn by Rubens, viz., black velvet breeches, marine-blue stockings, and velvet vest, trimmed with silk, and large felt hat.

There is a man in the Tyrol who is said to be gifted with the faculty of distinguishing odours by their colour. At one of his experiments a physician placed him under a sort of glass cover, with several phials containing different perfume. The man was stationed so as to see the bottles without the possibility of smelling their contents. As soon as the physician uncorked one of these phials, carefully concealed in his hand, the man named the perfume on seeing the colour, which escaped from the neck. According to these experiments the colour of musk is grey-blue; of garlic, orange; of ammonia, dull red; of aniseed, silver white, and so on.

One would like to know what odour would be seen to correspond to the colours in which the German artists are about to array themselves; and what may be the conflict of colours to be seen, by eyes gifted with this faculty, on passing along the streets of even the most elegant quarters of the cities which are constantly attracting so many who would do better to remain amidst rural surroundings, and in the exercise of rural sports.

THE NEW GUINEA PROTECTORATE.

The following notice, issued by His Excellency Sir Peter Schlesier, the Special Commissioner for the protected territory in New Guinea, was published in Friday's issue of the Government Gazette of Victoria:

"Captain Andrew Macrae, who has been appointed a District Commissioner for Western Pacific, has been placed in charge of Port Moresby and the coast extending from Hail Sound to Round Head."

"The Honourable John Douglas, C.M.G., Government Resident at Thursday Island, has, with the permission of Governor, accepted, accepted the position of Government Agent for the Protection."

"Officials will be appointed at other points of the coast when required or practical."

"Traders and others are confounded against visiting the portion of the coast and islands in the Pacific Ocean held, obtained after long begging, a statue of the Virgin, believed by all the people of the region to be richly gifted with celestial powers and grace, has just been solemnly crowned with a superb diadem, replete of gifts and subscriptions contributed for the purpose."

They must specify in what port or place their vessel is to be loaded, giving the name and address of their partners (if any) who may be connected with the ship."

INTERCOLONIAL ITEMS.

A special meeting of the executive committee of the Victorian Alliance was held on Friday evening (says the Argus). A report upon the passing of the Licensing Bill through the Legislative Assembly was submitted, and the opinion was unanimously expressed that the concession made by the Government in providing that the funds required for police purposes should come from the State was a wise one.

"A note states that—'The landing of firearms and ammunition for the personal use of persons possessing permits from her Majesty's Special Commissioner, will be allowed by a written permission from the Deputy Commissioner at Port Moresby.'

"The Association, styling itself the Micawber Gold Prospecting Association, has not been recognised by her Majesty's Special Commissioner, and it does not possess a permit to explore or prospect for gold or minerals in British New Guinea."

"The news of the Cape Colony Legislature, Mr. P. L. V. V. is, that the Cape was visited and waited on at Cape Town, and the Cape Colony Assembly of the Premier, Mr. Vandyke, to whom the King had given a sum of substantial appearance, are three stories. The apartments on the heads of the sisters, existing enthusiastic admiration among the devout portion of the crowd. The station was borne on a sort of litter by some sons of known distinction, and the portion of its route that lay through their quarters of the town was adorned over with an awning composed of fishing-nets; altogether a curious representation of feelings, convictions, and habits that would seem to be more in harmony with the world of a thousand years ago than with that of the present day."

"Ernest Renan has been taking part in a different kind of glorification of the past, viz., the 'Celtic Dinner' at Bonn, which brings together each year the most enthusiastic sons of Brittany, who glory themselves and their native province with abundant exultation. On this occasion the renowned author of the 'Life of Jesus' was the principal spokesman, and informed the gathering that Brittany still contains a numerous allowance of Renan. One of his kinsham, he said, was a sailor on board the torpedo-boat that has been exciting the curiosity of Paris; another has achieved the feat of amassing a fortune of $50,000 francs by killing mopes and selling their skins, for 5 sous each. The orator delighted his hearers by assuring them that Bretons were the bravest, boldest, and most patriotic of Frenchmen, and would always be the pride of French patriotism. After the dinner came a dance, Old Breton, with the music of bombarde and bagpipes, dating from the time of Queen Anne, with an echo of the ancient Bretones and the clatter of wooden shoes."

"The approach of the elections has brought to the front the leaders of the party who are raising the claim of the vote for women. A list of female candidates has been put in circulation, and meetings have been held, principally here and in Lyons, to urge the voters to inscribe this list on their electoral banner. Unfortunately for this movement, the names are not for the most part, such as to be likely to enlist the sympathy of the public. The three most widely known of the ladies thus proposed have declined to stand, stating that the political education of women in France has not, in their opinion, been sufficiently advanced to offer any guarantee of a moral result resulting from their admission to the ranks of the voters."

"A movement seems more likely to be productive of confusion in the direction of female emancipation, has just been set on foot in India, where Lady Dufferin, a national association for supplying female medical aid to the women of that vast dependency of the British Crown. The Viceregy is the patron, the Governor and Vice-Governor of the various provinces of British India are the vice-patrons, and their wives the vice-patrons of this association, which it is hoped will have a powerful effect in paving the way for that most urgent of all Indian reforms, viz., the amelioration of the condition of the women of India. The object is to supply in hospital wards and private houses the care and advice that respectable native women will only accept from their own sex. An effort is to be made to organise and stimulate the medical education of native women, to provide scholarships for their training, and to supply trained nurses and midwives; also to procure from Europe and America a sufficient number of accomplished lady doctors as teachers. Corresponding branches are to be formed in each province, and a general meeting of all the branches is to be held each year in Calcutta. The executive body consists of a small central committee, working under the presidency of Lady Dufferin. The Maharsahas of Ellwar, Butlam, and

A VISIT TO PORT ROYAL DES CHAMPS.

(FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.)

There is no district within a radius of 30 miles of Paris less known to the travelling Englishman than that through which a line drawn from Versailles to Rambouillet would pass. Taking Paris as his centre, Versailles is usually the limit of the English visitor's explorations in a south-western direction. Those who have plenty of time on their hands may take the rail way to Rambouillet and Chartres, so interesting to all students of mediæval architecture; but even they must be sought for in that no means numerous class for whom these places have acquired the fascination that belongs to historic and artistic associations. And yet it may well be questioned if there is any district in the neighbourhood of Paris more rich in those sudden contrasts of scenery, those changing expressions on the earth's face which charm the most, than the country between Versailles and Rambouillet, in the midst of which the ruins of the ancient abbey of Port Royal, so intimately associated with Jansenism, are still to be seen.

ROAD this side of the Railway-bridge.

A GRAND CORNER BUSINESS SITE, possessing the following frontages—

69 feet to NEWTOWN-ROAD
and

116 feet 1 inch to BUCKNELL-STREET.

fronting EMU-STREET, at BURWOOD, and situate opposite to BELMINT BAKERY, and being lot 15, sec. 1, of HANSON'S PADDICK.

This is an important piece of Land, bounded on both sides by rows of magnificent new shops. The train stops at the corner, Bucknell-street being the direct line of communication from Maccanor's Street, and the road leading to the station, and the main approach to the short cut to Parramatta-road and the Glebe. Woodside is made all along the road, and the probability is that the road will be taken from the railway, Glebe, and the street will be laid by Government next year, and a dust-free continuous thoroughfare thus established from the Circular Quay, with the dense population on both sides of the road, and the advance in value of business sites in this, the OXFORD-STREET of the SOUTHERN SUBURBS, will stop.

both these points in these two rapidly-developing business streets are

COMMERCIAL ACTIVITY AND SUCCESS, evidenced by the erection of numerous large stores, Kenyon's, George and King Streets, the centre of the city, viz.,

GEORGE and KING STREETS, Sussex-street, only a step further, and nearer the network of wharves and Darling Harbour Wharves.

This exceptional block has frontages of

54 feet to KENT-STREET,

64-12 feet to SUNSET-STREET, with a nobly built brick wall about 245 feet; and from the feature of the land it is capable of being used as a magnificent warehouse by any large firm requiring such space, equally suitable for the erection of offices and stores, which would doubtless find ready occupancy at highly remunerative rentals.

It is opposite a range of stores now erecting for the Anglo-Chinese Company, and on it are estates Nos.

387, 389, 391, KENT-STREET, and houses Nos. 172, 178, and 180, SUNSET-STREET, and Cooperage at the REAR.

TITLE, TORRENS' ACT. TERMS at sale.

AUBURN PARK, ON THE HIGHLIGHTS.

To Gentlemen requiring a COMFORTABLE COTTAGE and LARGE AND SPACIOUS GROUNDS, in an EXCELLENTLY LOCALITY, the Auctioneers can recommend the following property.

CARDS to view on application at the Rooms.

BATT, ROD, and PURVES have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, 88, Pitt-street, on TUESDAY, 27th October, at 11.30 a.m.

A REALLY SUITE PROPERTY, to be sold at a very REASONABLE FIGURE.

FOR POSITIVE UNRESERVED SALE.

BALMAIN, BALMAIN.

CURTIS-ROAD, and BOWNTREE STREET.

BATT, ROD, and PURVES have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, 88, Pitt-street, on TUESDAY, 27th OCTOBER, at 11.30 a.m.

A WELL-POSITIONED PROPERTY, within 5 MINUTES OF MORTS DOCK FERRY, ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT RESERVE.

Sold for Vendor—A. ROSE, Esq., Elizabeth-street.

MOUNTAIN SHEEP,
GLENNBROOK TOWNSHIP.

Choice HALF-ACRE BLOCKS, each 120 x 405, fronting EUBROOK and GLEN STREET, only a FEW FEET from the GOVERNMENT RESERVE, and about 2 MINUTES' walk from GLENBROOK RAILWAY STATION.

These sites occupy a LOVELY POSITION on the 1st ZIGZAG, commanding CHARMING VIEWS, and are well suited for the erection thereof, as a TOTAL RETREAT; situated 4 miles from Sydney, and 7 from PENRITH.

BATT, ROD, and PURVES have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, 88, Pitt-street, on TUESDAY, 27th OCTOBER, at 11.30 a.m.

THE TORRENS' ACT.

ONLY 3 MINUTES' WALK FROM THE STATION.

HANDSOMELY DETACHED BRICK RESIDENCE, stated recently to be the property of Mr. J. Murray, Esq., with three bedrooms, sitting and dining rooms (each 12 x 16, with folding doors and bay window), large orchard fully stocked with well-ripened fruit trees, vines, &c., two fireplaces, four rooms and kitchen, let at 12s per week; and 2 semi-detached Cottages similarly built, each containing 4 rooms and brick kitchen, let at 10s per week; and 2 small houses, one being a stable, the other a wash-room, both containing 2 rooms, veranda, small balcony, &c. Excellent building.

TERMS—One-third cash, balance in half-yearly instalments, with interest at 6 per cent. extending over 3 years.

In these years when a really remunerative return for capital is hard to get, the present sale offers a particular exception, as no further expenditure is required to begin to yield the profitable business of tanning, while the natural increase of value is assured, and the property is likely to hold its own for many years.

The auctioneers would point out that the property is most conveniently situated for the trade of a tanner, and the great manufacturing centre.

TERMS—One-third cash, 10 per cent. deposit, and the balance at 6 per cent. per annum.

Excellent building stops is considerable on the highest part of the site, and there is a good deal of the best kind of stone available.

TERMS—One-third cash, 10 per cent. deposit, and the balance at 6 per cent. per annum.

The views from this estate are rich, varied, and rare.

Surveyor—C. A. ATCHISON, 141, Pitt-street.

SUMMER HILL LAND SALES AUCTION, 21, Pitt-street, Sydney, on Saturday, 2nd November, at 11.30 a.m.

HARRISON, JONES and DEVLIN, Limited.
